This boy loves pennies.
They bring him a lot of joy.
He has a great big jar of them.
They call him Penny Boy.

When he grabs a handful and runs...
he hides because he thinks it's funny.
The game must go on!
Even when his nose is runny.

HATCHOO!

He's convinced that nobody will find him
as he runs down the hall.
Even when he takes a peek.
No... not at all.

Nobody will find him
They will not know
if he's far or near.

He runs as fast as a dinosaur
all throughout the house.
But he is extremely quiet.
Quiet as a mouse.

He hides in the hamper which doesn't smell good.

He moves to the next place
as fast as he should.

Every day
he stops on a dime
and realizes the perfect hiding place that works every time.

So, there he goes
with a smile on his face
as he flies under his blanket.
His favorite hiding place.

So, this is the story of Penny Boy.
His naptime: the how and when.
It's a tradition that won't last forever
but tomorrow they'll do it again.
